Draft.Version.7¡9.

This is not a test or a scorecard. It is a quick way to decide whether an official campaign role fits how you want to work. A person can support or endorse Casey Miller without becoming an official campaign participant.

Could I work officially with Friends of Casey Miller?

☐ Yes ☐ Not sure ☐ No Can I support a campaign that avoids personal degradation and demeaning attacks, even when I strongly disagree with someone?

☐ Yes ☐ Not sure ☐ No Can I distinguish criticism of a record, decision, policy or public action from an attack on a person?

☐ Yes ☐ Not sure ☐ No Can I be truthful about whether I am acting for the campaign, even if I prefer that my personal identity not be publicly promoted?

☐ Yes ☐ Not sure ☐ No Can I work within a defined role and accept that access, expertise, money, friendship or volunteer effort does not automatically give me broader campaign authority?

☐ Yes ☐ Not sure ☐ No If I disagree with Casey or another authorized decision-maker, can I raise the concern directly, make my case, and then either work within the decision or step away from that part of the work?

☐ Yes ☐ Not sure ☐ No Can I keep campaign activity separate from my personal political activity and from work I may be doing for other candidates?

☐ Yes ☐ Not sure ☐ No Can I avoid making purchases, subscriptions, vendor commitments or other financial decisions for the campaign unless I have been specifically authorized to do so?

☐ Yes ☐ Not sure ☐ No Can I treat people across differences, including LGBTQ+ people and people with different political or personal beliefs, with basic dignity?

☐ Yes ☐ Not sure ☐ No Can I accept that campaign support, money, endorsements or volunteer effort do not buy influence over Casey's governmental decisions?

☐ Yes ☐ Not sure ☐ No If I make a mistake, can I acknowledge it, help repair it and adjust how I work going forward?

☐ Yes ☐ Not sure ☐ No Would I be comfortable explaining publicly, if necessary, that the work I did for the campaign was consistent with these values?

If these expectations generally fit how you want to work, an official role with Friends of Casey Miller may be a good fit. If one or more creates a serious conflict, that does not mean you cannot support Casey Miller. It may simply mean that an official campaign role is not the right relationship.
